TO WORK, MR. WELLMAN, TO WORK.

The flight of Katle Schubert, one of the principal accusers of the police cap-tains and ward men before the Lexow Committee, is a burning disgrace to the police and to everybody concerned in the nvestigation or prosecution of police corruption. It is nonsense to pretend that the woman's escape from the country on the steamer Normannia could not official or semi-official ail. Mr. Wellman does not hesitate to assert that her flight was noted by Counsel Goff's employees, and Mr. Goff simply replies that Mr. Wellman is "wholly staken." It certainly looks as if there had been a conspiracy to get the woman out of the country. There was a prenow boasts loudly that he had noth ing to fear from her testimony. why was she allowed to go to Jersey City if it was not intended she should away, and why was she not watched by detectives while there, when positive ertions were made of her intention

Mr. Wellman's skirts will not be clear until he proves conclusively that he had no part in the escape, and this he cannot do unless he at least tries to show whose work it was. He husband should go to Jersey City, where she was outside the juris of New York, and he kept conlently asserting that she would appear never he desired. ne, Mr. Wellman, the people want

LABOR DAY.

Next Monday is Labor Day, and there cations that the holiday will be colebrated with unusual spirit this year The hard times through which the work ing people have struggled during the past Winter are now believed to be about at an end. The eventual settlef the tariff question after Repub-Hoan filibustering and Senatorial hery promises a revival of business. Money is flowing into the Treas ury through the activity at the Custom-House, mills are resuming work and is a general improvement in the wealthy tax-dodgers into assessment and by so much relieves the undue burheretofore laid on the shoulders of the sons of toil. Moreover, despite the temporary tri-umph of the Sugar Trust ring, through the venality of Senators, the high protective policy which has built up and fostered monopolies has received a blow from which it will never recover. The peratic pledges to the people have levism is dead, nevertheless, and each help to make the demonstration of Monday a significant and spirited affair, independent of the fact that the holiday is becoming more and more popular every year. It has lived down opposiand prejudice, and it is now generally admitted that labor, the main of our National wealth and nower and the bulwark of our institutions, derves to be distinguished by a holiday of its own set apart in honor of those whom the country owes so much. In idleness is disgraceful.

It ought to be regarded as a privileg by all conditions of men to observe Labor Day as a season of recreation and enjoyment.

WHAT CAUSES THE DELAY!

Some surprise is caused by the fact that the Secretary of War has left Washington on a junketing excursion before acting on the report of the Board of Expert Engineers on the construction of the New York and New Jersey

It is an open secret that Mr. Lamont some reason, has not been friendly towards that great enterprise. the first Bridge bill was vetoed for what were generally regarded as insufficient s, the new bill was made to conform in all respects with the sugge tions and objections set forth in the veto message. "SHAFT NO. 2."

Forked lightning in streaks of zigzag Impressiveness is the main feature of the "domestic story of to-day" now being acted at the Columbus Theatre, Harlem, under the title of "Shaft No. 2" The lightning is something new in the way of stage storms, and it succeeds a moon-one of the mooniest moons I have ever seen over which clouds roll blackly and ominously. Of far more consequence are the lightning and the moon. The nary minds it seems like legalizing the audience absolutely stopped the action of the play to applaud these "electric effects," which are undoubtedly or ginal and interesting.

"Shaft No. 2" itself is not a very valcable contribution to stage literature. Its story is a triffe too far-fetched for unhesitating acceptance. The villain is actuated by hatred of a man who twenty years before the play opened married the girl loved by this villain. Twenty years is a long time. Time heafs one rarely hears these contests between the gentleman whom the villain has threatened. The villain, to prevent his victim raising money by Jim's most renite explosion, ready on tap. Then for La the next act his paralytic mother goes to plead with the Governor for his life, and in the last act all ends neatly. The story is roughly told, but in spite of this the stage effects will make "Shafe No. 2" a very profitable affair. So en thusiastic was the audience last night the sixth performance of the piece-tha trolmen and the suspension of one ward Frank L. Bixby, the author, was called man and the retirement of one sergeant, before the curtain. The play will be in much demand by popular-price houses Frank Losee played the villain very onventionally, and Miss Elmore at willing that the woman and has done his best to save some of the Irish role with which she did fairly well. The best work was done by Mrs. W. G. Jones. Paul Scott was acceptable and would be if the renewal of the Lexow J. E. Gilbert was not. The one rule for persons behind runaway horses would be of great value if they could only remember and adopt it. That is, to stay in the vehicle and retrain from jumping out.

Above all things, don't jump. Unfortunately, however, people seem to lose their heads in the accettement of the moment. Many persons would have naved their lives, and probably have except om Jumping out. Of course, like every other rule, it has its exceptions. Bob-Girls in Pantaloon Press. Tailors, as every well-dressed man knows, import a line of cloths expressly manufactured for pantalosni. It is known in trade as trousering. Trousering cloths run to stripes, checks, broken plaids of skeleton lines and petty tures with touches of color, The best are rather loosely woven, absolutely weather-proof and represent the highest skill of the draper, since ervice and beauty are combined. Hese cloths caught the fancy of the bobyiris, as the cutters call them, and are now being worn in the form of pantalon dresses. Ladies' tailors predict a cras. The style took at the start, and novelles are coming from London and Livepool for the Fall trade. Coats and vest of smooth cloths are worn with the pantaloon dresses.
